YOUNG MOVIE STAR PICKED FOR CAREER

Margery Daw.

Because she has "personality and naturalness" and "is unaffected and pretty," Miss Marguerite House, fourteen, of Los Angeles, who has been playing in the movies for a year under the name of Margery Daw, has been picked out for a real theatrical, and perhaps an operatic, career by Miss Geraldine Farrar.

ONE DRUNK ARRAIGNED IN COURT THIS MORNING

Mike Schuler, late of Hartland, Ill., is an honest man. In fact he was too honest for his own good in the municipal court, for Mike pleaded guilty to being drunk and confessed that he had only been in the city two or three days and had been drunk most of the time. Worse still, Mike smiled quite a little in answering the questions and it caused no surprise when he was handed a sentence of a twenty dollar fine or thirty days in jail. He did not have the money, but he had the time.

John Cole, who pleaded guilty to larceny yesterday in an Evansville offense, was given thirty days. The case against Mable Griffin, charged with being intoxicated at the fair grounds, and W. N. Curry, also for drunkenness, were adjourned until October first.

MAKE GOOD SHOWING AT SWIMMING MEET

Hundred Boys and Girls Compete in Third Annual Playground Event on Tuesday Afternoon.

In spite of the cold weather yesterday afternoon the third annual swimming meet of the playground system was contested. About one hundred boys and girls entered the water to take part in the various events. In the number of points scored the Jefferson won handsily with 83. The Adams scored 40, the Washington 25 and the Webster 24.

In the older boys' group Byron Shabor won three firsts in three attempts. After entering the first three events he was forced to leave the water because of the cold. Edwin Sherman, Arthur Ploegart and Leo Powers carried off the bulk of the ribbons in the twelve to fourteen year old class. Del Truesdale entered three events in the under twelve boys' class and won three firsts. Bob Healy and John Smith were also heavy point gainers in the younger class. Excellent time was made in most of the events considering the cold weather.

Probably the most interesting contest was the under water swim for the older boys. Walter Williams and William Boss far outdistanced their rivals in the long swim. The race in the twelve to fourteen year class was decided when Edward Sheridan won by a small margin over Leo Powers.

Following is the summary:
Boys Under Twelve.
Crawl stroke—John Smith, 1st; Robert Healy, 2nd, John O'Brien, 3rd.
Back stroke—John Smith, 1st, John O'Brien, 2nd.

Thanks Those Who Made Possible Outing for Fresh Air Children.

Youngsters Entertained for Two Weeks at Rock County Homes.

Again through the efforts of the philanthropic department of the summer club of Household Economics, a company of children from the Chicago tenement districts has enjoyed a two weeks' outing at Rock county homes. The women in charge of the work have spent considerable time and money but their efforts have been crowned with the satisfaction of knowing that a good work has been done.

Thirty-three children were cared for this season. Seventeen were entertained free of charge in ten different homes, four at the home of Mrs. Belle White, two at the homes of each of the following: Mrs. Frank Van Kirk, Mrs. Geysering, Mrs. Charles Winkelman and Mrs. George Townsend, and one at the homes of each of the following: Mrs. Harry Zigler, Mrs. A. Blumreich, Mrs. George Goldsmith, Mrs. Harry Handy and Mrs. James Zanias. The board for the sixteen remaining children was paid for at the rate of $5 for each child for the two weeks, $30 in all. The club spent $21.16 for clothing necessities, and have a balance on hand in the treasury of the philanthropic department of $10.50, which will be used in the work next year.

Mrs. Geo. Rummel and others in charge of the philanthropic work are most grateful to every person who has helped in the work, and say that it is safe to say that those whose appreciation for what was done is deepest, are the children who had such a happy time, romping and playing for two whole weeks in the country, enjoying the fresh air, the green grass and a hundred and one attractions which the country has for children born and reared in the dreary atmosphere of the tenements.

The following letter from the outgoing department of the United States Charities of Chicago, to Miss Eleanor King, secretary of the local society, gives an inkling of what has been done in the way of providing outings this season. It reads:

"My Dear Miss King:—We are just finishing what has been one of the largest and most enjoyable summer outings seasons ever undertaken by this organization. Through the kindness and co-operation of our friends in 300 homes, in the communities of the country, towns of six states, about 1,800 children have enjoyed the privilege of two weeks in the fresh air of the country. Add to those, the number who have been sent to camp, and on day outings and out total will reach about 13,000."

"So you can easily see in what a grand and glorious work you, as a steady and efficient outing committee, have had a part."

"Hoping that next year we shall be able to count upon you for the work of 'Childhood' again we are ever your sincere friends," Summer Outing Department."

Unprecedented Crowds Fill Janesville From Miles Distant.

Before seven o'clock this morning shoppers began to gather at the stores to secure their share of the Dollar Bargains which had been advertised in Monday's Gazette for this day.

During the day every street in the business section and every train brought shoppers from all over Southern Wisconsin and as far north as Stoughton.

The merchants' advice to "Come down early" was heeded and the wisdom thereof was demonstrated. It is a difficult matter to forecast the demand for any one article. By the middle of the forenoon many offerings had been sold out completely. This was through no fault of the merchants for the Gazette knew to a certainty that every item advertised in its columns was in stock when the day's business opened. But the rush was unprecedented and those who came later had to take their chance.

The city was thronged all day giving the streets the appearance of circus day. Dollar Day has more than ever verified the pulling power of the Gazette advertising. No other medium was used to advertise the event. The Gazette is read thoroughly. No matter what the merchants' message may be, it will be read. Action depends upon its contents.

Dr. Woods Told Keeper of London Boarding House He Would Write If He Survived Journey.

Indications that Dr. Woods had a mysterious presentiment that the steamer upon which he was sailing for America would be torpedoed, are noted in a dispatch from London which gives the conversation between Dr. Woods and the keeper of the pension in London where he lived. After paying his bill he is quoted as saying to the manager in the office:

"Well, I'm going back to America. I don't know if the Arabic will ever get there. If she does, I'll write to you and let you know, but you never can tell what may happen. If they submarine us, I'll write you if I escape. If you don't hear from me, then you'll know I'm gone."

HAMBURG RESIDENT SOON TO BE ON TRIAL FOR ESPIONAGE CHARGES

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] Paris, Aug. 25.—The court martial of the 15th military region of France will soon try Herman Hoche of Hamburg, director of the Union Sulphur Co. for espionage in France. It is the first case in which the public has been furnished with precise details of the alleged German military preparations in France before the war.

Hoche, who will be tried by default, having left France fourteen days before Germany declared war, is charged with having built concrete gun foundations in his work in France and having constructed along an important line of railroad, installations destined to facilitate an advance coup by enemies of France.

This is said to have been prevented by the minute precautions taken by the French military authorities as soon as the mobilization was foreseen.

Hoche is also charged with having intruded to prevent the importation into France from Louisiana and Sicily in order to hamper the production of ammunition by French arsenals.

WHITE SOX GAINING BY WINNING 6 TO 5

Sox Grab Off Wooze Contest In Thirteen Innings.—Cubs Win.—Boston Sox Defeat Tigers.

Chicago, Aug. 25.—Thirteen innings of light baseball and the Sox won from Washington yesterday by the score of 6 to 5. Ray Schalk, the stellar Sox catcher, was injured in the game yesterday, but not severely. As Hession jumped Detroit, the Sox gained a lap on the Detroiters and held even with Boston.

The game was a wooze one, ten errors being made, the Senators committing six and the Sox four. Scott hurried for the Sox and Boehling started for Washington, being replaced by Ayers when the visitors at Chicago began kicking the ball over the diamond behind him.

Cubs Win, 6 to 1. Philadelphia, Aug. 24.—The Cubs had a revival yesterday, whaling Philadelphia by the score of 6 to 1 in a clean cut victory. Jim Lavender served the main credit for the win for he allowed but seven scattered hits, while the Bruins bumped Chalmers and Bunting hard for ten safe blows. Bob Fischer hit a homer with two on in the first inning off Huxey and clinched matters.

Red Sox Win. Detroit, Aug. 24.—Brilliant fielding matched against desperate slugging on Tuesday gave Boston a 3 to 1 victory over Detroit in the opening contest of a series which may decide the American league pennant.

Three hits, two of them bunts, and wild throws by Coveleski and Stanee gave the league leaders three runs in the first inning. The Tigers smashed almost everything that Shore had to offer, put man after man on the bases, only to see them die. There, when Barry, Gainer, Hooper, Speaker, Gardner or Scott cut off drives that seemed safe beyond question. Only in the fifth, when Bush walked and Cobb dented the right field screen with a triple could Detroit score. In the sixth, Gainer made a one hand stop behind first base of a rifle shot grounded by Crawford. Speaker, running at full speed with his back to the ball, then caught Veatch's drive a few feet from the center field stand.

JANESVILLE HORSE TIES FOR SECOND AT BELOIT

Frank L. (Guttenstein, Milwaukee, Wis.) 1 1
Charlie G. (Smith, Tesheula, Wis.) 2 2
Red Band (Pelletier, Madison) 3 3
Ella Todd and Peter Chinn started. Time, 2:16 1/2, 2:17 1/2, 2:18 1/2.
Two year old trot, half mile heats.
Bandit Chief (Amundson, Beloit) 1 1
Hugh Leyburn (Goodrich, Beloit) 2 2
Roxina Binger (Goodall, Janesville) 3 3
Billie Dunham (Heald, Elgin) 4 4
Time, 1:19 1/2, 1:20.
2:30 trot—Morley (Finley, Ripon) won; Elwood C. second; Attorney General, third; Eva Binger, fourth.
Capt. Harry, Beechmont and Vera Patch started. Time, 2:20, 2:18 1/2, 2:18 1/2.

Spriggin Winner. Dubuque, Ia., Aug. 24.—Despite overcast weather and a strong northwest wind, 8,000 persons witnessed the revival of harness racing here Tuesday afternoon at the opening of the Great Western meet. The track was fast and low records were made, notwithstanding the cold and wind. The 2:17 trot was won by Spriggin, owned by James F. Dunne of San Francisco, in straight heats. The time in each was 2:10 1/2. The finishes in all events were close.

Almost everything wanted are found advertised in Gazette want ads. Read them and see.

MORE ARGUMENTS ON "TEN CENT" BASEBALL

Organized Ball Men Say Is Feds Last Dying Gurge and the Outlaws Given the Laugh.

New York, Aug. 25.—Organized baseball has its eye glued to the knot-hole. The knot-hole is about the size of a dime and in the Federal fence. O. B. is rightly interested in knowing how many ten-cent baseball fans there are in these United States. Ever since Jim Gilmore kicked his entire collection of hats into the ring, O. B.'s clocks have been working diligently in the Federal yards. Why should O. B. be so mighty interested? It hasn't been very many moons ago since Ban Johnson was tuning up his bass for the Feds' funeral dirge. The reason is apparent.—O. B. has come to the realization that something is the matter with baseball, and in O. B.'s ranks to want to find out what it is. So its going to see if Dr. Gilmore has properly diagnosed the case. Dr. Gilmore's diagnosis is that the dear old public is tired of paying big prices to see games.

That, however, raises a question in the minds of a lot of baseball men as to what the Johnson-Tenney combine will do if it ultimately finds that the Feds are right. With high salaries, high running expenses, high cost of equipment and various other high departments the business end of baseball, can O. B. exhibit its wares to the fans at a dime a throw? A careful canvass of opinions outside the ranks of either of the warring factions reveals few who think it can. That is, unless something is cut—either the players' salaries or the managers' divy. There are a lot of baseball clubs losing money this year with the two bits minimum.

Close to one thousand fans would have to crowd into the Detroit park every day—at 10c a head—to pay Ty Cobb's salary for that day, because Ty Cobb gets paid at the rate of nearly one hundred dollars per diem. And Sam Crawford, Bobby Veatch, Jean Dubuc, George Daus, Ownie Bush and a dozen other players are getting good salaries.

On the same basis, 30,000 fans would have to pass through the turnstiles at the Polo grounds in a season to pay the yearly salary of John McGraw. Mr. McGraw is popularly supposed to be drawing down $30,000 for his labors with the Giants. And Christy Mathewson, Larry Doyle, Fred Merkle and Hans Lobert are not working for their health.

The Feds have practically the same payroll, taking all the players into consideration. Cy Falkenberg is pulling $7,500 yearly, Bennie Kauff is getting about the same, Joe Tinker gets a lot more than either of them, and so do Hal Chase, Leo Magee and a score of other big men in the third league outfit.

The Feds haven't made any money this year. Jim Gilmore says they don't expect to—that the Federal league backers don't care to as they are in baseball for sport. Mr. Gilmore, undoubtedly, is trying to kid himself.

It has been suggested by O. B. adherents that the Feds' 10-cent ante is the dying gurge of the third circuit—that it is the last frenzied spitter to get out with the skins whole. This gets a laugh from the other side of the fence.

The real reason isn't apparent to those on the outside.

PRaises LEADING CLUB IN RIVAL CITY AND IS TAKEN TO POLICE STATION

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE] St. Paul, Minn., Aug. 25.—With the jealousy between Minneapolis and St. Paul at a red heat because Minneapolis was occupying first place and St. Paul second place, in the American association baseball standing, William F. PRINCE ALBERT

the national joy smoke

PAINT this little picture on your mind, then beat it quick-cross-lots for some Prince Albert tobacco, because you need it in your smokings!

Talk about putting the hush on that tobacco hankering! Prince Albert just purrs pleasure on your tongue as you draw in the cool smoke from a jimmy pipe or makin's cigarette! The patented process fixes that and muffles the bite and parch!

So you cast past smoking memories into the discard and draw cards via Prince Albert, for you'll trump tricks on every show down when you fire up this national joy smoke!

Such jimmy pipe tobacco, such makin's tobacco, never did come into your taste-zone before! Such flavor, and coolness, and fragrance; such mellowness! Why, men, P. A.'s so good you call it by its first name like you were brought up in the same house!

And you just go on smoking Prince Albert day-in, day-out, because it's so good and friendly and cheerful to the tenderest tongue!

And nail this: You will find P. A., jammed in a jimmy pipe or rolled into a makin's cigarette, better than the most cheerful word we ever printed about it!

Buy Prince Albert everywhere tobacco is sold. Topsy red bags (handy for cigarette smokers), 5c; tidy red tins, 10c; handsome pound and half-pound tin humidors—and—that classy pound crystal-glass humidors with the sponge-moistener top that keeps the tobacco so slick!

Jimmy Clabby, the shift welterweight, says baseball is fine training for a boxer. He practices with ball clubs whenever he can. "Baseball keeps a fellow off his toes, and is great training for the eyes," said Clabby. "Bating makes a fellow a fine judge of distance, and that's important in a ring bout. Baseball practice has done me as much good as anything else in my training for bouts."

The Cardinals have announced the acquisition of Carcher Glenn and Reese Wilson from the St. Paul club of the American Association, but have failed to indicate whether they will take Charlie Hall as first reported. Hall has two sixteen straight games, and despite his age, is the star pitcher of the league. Hall has sprung the Federal league threat, and says he'll join the outlaws if his contract isn't taken over by one of the big league clubs.

Allan I. Blanchard, president of the International Skating Association of America, the one man who has kept the ice racing sport in the limelight for years, has conducted his last championship meeting. Blanchard, in a letter to a friend, announces his intention of resigning. Blanchard has taken a lifelong interest in the sport, and his resignation appears to be due to a change of residence. He used to live in Chicago, and went on a trip to the Panama exhibition where he fell so much in love with the California climate that he decided to spend the rest of his days enjoying it.

Ray Bronson, former welterweight, now the best-dressed fight manager at large, is still riled because Milburn Saylor was disqualified in the Akron bout with Johnny Griffiths. "Too many inexperienced men," says Bronson, "are given a chance to interpret the rules in any manner they see fit. There should be a standard code, just as in baseball. If the straight Queensberry rules are to govern in one place they should govern in all. I'd make every referee pass an examination before giving him a permit to work."

If the Phils win the pennant this season it will be the first time in thirty-six years a National league bunting has gone to the City of Brotherly Love. Philadelphia began in the National circuit in 1876. The American league club in the same city, under the management of Connie Mack, has landed five flags in fifteen years. A pennant for the Phils would also put a big feather in the cap of Pat Moran, for this is his first season as a manager.

The resignation of Lee Magee, manager of the Brookfields, is the best thing that could happen for the team and for Magee. Lee is one of the finest little ball players in this United States, but he was tempora-

Jack Fournier's rival for first base on the White Sox team next year will be none other than Jack Ness, Oakland infielder who set a world's record by hitting safely in forty-nine consecutive games. Ness had the choice of the coast club this year and has indicated that Ness is the man he wants. Ness had a trial with the Tigers several springs ago.

More than $80,000 was literally shot away during the week at the Chicago trap gun tournament. The money spent for the tournament, the money spent for the fun of feeling the kick of a gun, smelling gunpowder and hearing the yell of the scorer calling out "dead" after each "bird" is shattered in bits. A total of $12,000 was spent solely for ammunition. Shells costing $30 per thousand and about 400,000 were used during the tournament. Trapshooting is an amateur sport pure and simple.

CLINTON B. POST NAMED AS COUNTY OFFICIAL

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE] Madison, Wis., Aug. 25.—Clinton B. Post, originally of Oconto county, but for several years engaged in soil investigations in this state, has been chosen agricultural representative for Ashland county. His appointment was officially made by the board of regents last week and accepted by the Ashland county board of supervisors, of which Carl E. Budquist is chairman. Mr. Post is a graduate of the long course in agriculture at the state university and has had wide experience under northern conditions. He was brought up on a farm in Oconto county and has had special opportunity for experience with met-ter lands. His salary will be met jointly by the county, the United States department of agriculture and the university. In his work he will undoubtedly make good use of the results worked out upon the experimental farm at Ashland Junction.

WHO IS TO BLAME?

Press writers the nation through are deploring the slipshod speech of the young men and women of the present day and generation. Some of the writers on the subject blame the schools, others the home surroundings, but none apparently have reached a solution of the problem of how to remedy it and cure the ever increasing evil. That the use of slang, the incorrect tenses of verbs, the attempt to use big words that are meaningless when combined with simple sentences is increasing is most certain.

Up at Madison this past winter a dozen legislative lobbyists who were seeking to prevent the passage of Governor Phillips' educational bill, took up the topic and corner of the question. They all agreed that it was almost impossible to find a graduate of any of the accredited high schools of the state who could write correct English and deplored the fact. One gentleman whose business, aside from lobbying, is conducting a large mercantile concern, stated emphatically that he had to educate his son and a nephew after they left college to write correct English and spell the most common words properly before he could trust them in charge of the correspondence of his firm.

It is a deplorable situation. It is something that when the average business man stops and considers, actually exists. How many business men have been disappointed in the spelling and punctuation properties? One gentleman who has had considerable experience with graduates of the local high school, makes a similar statement, only he adds that they do not know their grammatical construction of sentences. Are we teaching our young people too much of the "fine arts" and neglecting the old-fashioned three "R's"?

The Cincinnati Times-Star is agast at the situation and the atrocious English of young folks who have every opportunity to acquire the habit of using correct language. It illuminates its views by the following experience which might be true of almost any community. "Four young girls and four young boys, all of them neatly dressed and presumably in the high schools, were riding down town on a street car. One of the girls, visibly intelligent, observed to a companion, 'I ain't seen George since Monday. I guess he's went away.' To which the girl with the pink waist replied, 'Oh, he's workin' and ain't got no time to hisself.' One of the boys chimed in with, 'I seen him on the street yesterday.' To judge by their ages, each of these young people must have had not less than eight or ten years' schooling. They probably had received elementary, intermediate and a year or two of high school training in proper speech. They had been more or less intimately associated with people who speak correctly. There was no good reason why they should not adapt their own speech to the same form. But for a distance of a mile or more they emitted one horrible error after another, careless, indifferent and unashamed."

The Milwaukee Evening Wisconsin in commenting upon this same subject, says that the Times-Star is inclined to absolve the schools from culpability. "Whatever their imperfections may be," it asserts, "they are not responsible for the slovenliness which is distressingly prevalent in the conversations of the young." This is not so sure. Listening to the talk of school teachers one often is astonished at their employment of slang and their frequent inclination to grammar. As for colleges, they are hot-beds of linguistic improprieties. If there is not in the temples of learning respect for good English and a degree of taste sufficient to condemn blundering mispronunciations and gross violations of grammatical rules and a continual preference for slang to simple straightforward speech—even when the slang borders upon the vulgar—how can it be expected that correct conversational standards will prevail? There has been of late a disposition to predict that a time will come when there will be two English languages—one of books and the other of daily speech. This is not convincing as many writers of books of the day are slipshod in their language, and the number of people who buy and read books seems to be rapidly decreasing. Meantime these "conditions exist and school days are soon to begin again. It might be possible to help matters somewhat if special attention was paid to the question at once by educators the country over.

COTTON IS CONTRABAND.

The declaration that cotton is contraband of war is not surprising, and while this step will be most repugnant to the American people, the best authorities on international law are agreed that they have an absolute right to do so. Cotton has become an indispensable material for the manufacture of high explosives, as much so as saltpeter, and there is abundant precedent for declaring gunpowder and other forms of explosives and their component materials contraband. Furthermore, our own government has established a precedent, as has been pointed out in these letters, immediately after the Boxer rebellion in China, Secretary Hay sent to the American minister, at Peking, an able argument setting forth that cotton could properly be made contraband. This argument was made public and will doubtless be the chief reliance of the British foreign office.

THE CROPS.

Even if we lose a few million dollars worth of our present crops, as estimated by the United States government, "safety" still the average American farmer will be ahead of last year and the prospects of higher prices will bring his total receipts up materially. This is a great country of ours taking it from the Canadian border to the Gulf of Mexico, and from the Pacific slope to the Atlantic coast. We can produce pretty nearly everything we need for our own consumption. Given time we can be entirely independent as regards manufactures and specially patented contrivances we have had to depend upon Europe to furnish in the past. Meanwhile our crops continue to grow and the horn of plenty is filled to the brim. Right here at home the wave of prosperity is felt and in a farming community such as Rock we can appreciate what it means to the individual farmer. This is a great world we live in and a great country we call ours.

Appleton has just completed a five thousand dollar swimming tank in its river for the benefit of those who enjoy the recreation. Think of that! The city of Appleton gave a thousand dollars from its treasury and the rest was raised by popular subscription. Let us see, is Appleton as big as Janesville?

One of the first things that the average boy and girl should be taught is how to swim. Thank goodness the playground directors in Janesville have taken this in hand and worked wonders and the Y. M. C. A. is also doing its share but still there many who do not know yet.

Even in war there are some consolations that science may be benefited. Report has it that the English troops digging trenches at Gallipoli have come upon some interesting remains of Greek architecture and ancient Greek art.

The question is asked pertinently by a parody published in a pro-German community: "Have non-combatants and neutrals no rights at sea that belligerents are bound to respect?" The country waits the word from Washington on this subject.

Why does not some inventor put a paper sock on the market just to foil the mosquito. Then can bite through anything else and have become inimical to all the usual anti mosquito remedies.

Mexico's prescription has been written for it. The next thing is to hold its nose and make him swallow it just as you would in giving a child a dose of castor oil.

The sea wall at Galveston has proven its worth in dollars and cents and it cost a heap of money when it was constructed. However, it is money well expended.

THE DAILY NOVELETTE.

Very Poor, Eddie, Very Poor. It was a rainy afternoon in the front office of the Hardbean dog collar works.

"You fellows haven't got the nerve you were born with," said Eddie, the assistant fastener, scornfully. "I've been here four months now, and I'm going to walk right into the old man's room and ask for a raise, and if I don't get it, why, I quit, understand?"

The other clerks grew pale. Two of the younger ones fainted and their foreheads had to be laved with ink. In twenty years no one had dared to ask old man Hardbean for a raise. Fearfully, they shook his hand and bade him good-by as he walked into old man Hardbean's office with his chest out.

Old man Hardbean was signing discharges with his fourteen inch hand. "Well," he said, and his voice, coming from somewhere inside his inch chest, was as the bellow of a bull with a cold.

Eddie fixed his eyes on old man Hardbean's massive projecting chin. "If you please, sir," he whispered, "in the—ah—best interests of the firm and—ah—myself, I would like to suggest that my—er—salary be—be reduced a dollar a week."

"Grand!" bellowed old man Hardbean, and swung around and resumed signing the discharges. It was a rainy day in the Hardbean dog collar works.

George Fitch. I cannot make myself believe That my good friend is dead; As in a misty dream unreal, The story I have read.

It does not seem quite possible That Fate could strike the hour Upon this genius yet to reach The climax of his power.

We've wandered through the cities And beside the rippling brooks; I've heard his quaint discourses on Art, music, drama, books.

He knew the flowers, he knew the birds, And nature's every turn; With kindly inquiry he lived, He lived to learn and learn.

His mind was pure, his thoughts were clean, And nature's every turn; With kindly inquiry he lived, He lived to learn and learn.

They say he's dead. It is not true. I can believe that never. A soul like his could never die. George Fitch will live forever.

A New Poetess of Passion. Ellabelle Mae Deolitte, passion poetess of Puchindale, sends in the following weird verse libra. She was inspired one night when she awoke and heard strange creakings from the doors, furniture, etc. The hymn is called "Noises of the Night, So Gray and Bleak." Here it is:

When I awake at midnight, And hear the clock ticking, Everything seems so weird-like, And little noises are so tricky. You think you hear a truck, perhaps, Just because the door did creak, But nothing is to be found behind it, Noises of the night so gray and bleak!

My sister's child, Teeny Ricketts, Tried to take a bath in the wash tub. She got stuck in it, of course, And really we had to oil her. But, getting back to noises of the night, Never let them frighten you; There's Rover's leg bounding on the floor, Dear old dog! What can be biting you.

The Weather. Old Hiram Purdy does allow That he saw his old blind cow Rub up agin' the barnyard fence And then gaze at the moon. He swears that at times of nine This is a sure and certain sign A spell of rainy weather is comin' mighty soon.

Old Grandma Tubbs desires to state Her hens are actin' queer of late. They don't seem pleased about their food and all refuse to lay. She's willing to put up a bet By gum, she has assessed it yet, A spell of dry, hot weather is sure headed right our way.

There's nothing that you cannot hear At almost any time of year About the weather from the folks who sit and twirl their thumbs. It's rarely that they can agree, And so it's very plain to see The best plan is to simply take the weather as it comes.

NEW SWISS RAILROAD RECENTLY BEEN OPENED

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] Geneva, July 25.—The latest and finest of the little Swiss mountain railways has just been opened between Leuk and Lenkerbad. It will probably be the last to be constructed for many years to come. The new line, begun in 1912, is six and a half miles long, and operates by electricity. It is mainly a tourist line, leading from Leuk on the main Swiss line to the beautiful little watering place and winter resort of Lenkerbad. It also affords access to the interesting bridge path leading to the summit of the Gemmi Pass, 7555 feet high. The construction of the line cost over $100,000 a mile.

MAKES A STATEMENT ON NEW GAME LAWS

State Conservation Commission Issues An Announcement of Interest to All Sportsmen.

Madison, Wis., Aug. 25.—So many changes have been made in the fish and game laws at the session of the legislature just closed the state conservation commission has issued a statement showing the changes made and with the approach of the open season warns all sportsmen that the new regulations will be strictly enforced.

The season for deer is from Nov. 11 to Nov. 30 inclusive. The deer law has been changed so that for the coming season buck deer only can be killed. Folk county has been added to the list of closed counties.

Muskrat Season Modified. The season for muskrat has also been modified. In some of the northern counties the open season has been made longer than for the counties in the southern part of the state because of severe climate.

The waters in the northern counties freeze more quickly and thaw out later; consequently if trappers were not given an opportunity to begin their fall trapping until the time set for those in the southern part of the state they would not have good access to the lakes and streams frozen over. The season for these animals a year ago opened on Oct. 15, in all counties, but as the fur is not prime at such an early date and many of the animals are only half grown, we deemed advisable to have the season open a month later in the southern counties and fifteen days later in the northern counties.

The provisions for trapping muskrats on the Mississippi river or the sloughs connected therewith remain the same as the previous season. Raccoon hunters must beware of the time when they pursue their favorite animal. Instead of from Oct. 1 to Jan. 1, the season is now from Nov. 1 to Feb. 1, except in Washington and Ozaukee counties, where the season has been limited to thirty days beginning Nov. 15 and closing Dec. 15.

Skunk has also been given consideration in the counties of Washington and Ozaukee. The open season begins from Oct. 10 to Feb. 1, but in all other counties no regulations exist, and there is no closed season. Protect Grey Fox. The law on grey fox and black squirrels has also been modified in that in certain counties a limit of the number that may be taken has been provided and in other counties the season has been closed indefinitely. The same can be said for rabbit, except that there are no counties in which they may not be hunted at some time of the year, although in some a bag limit has been provided. The parties or ruffed grouse are given a uniform season in all of the counties from Sept. 7 to Oct. 31. Ten may be taken each day except in Washington and Ozaukee counties, where a limit of two each day is provided. Prairie chicken, pinnated grouse and sharp-tailed grouse may be hunted from Sept. 7 to Sept. 30, with a limit of five each day, except in Waushara county where the season closes on Sept. 15 and in Vernon and Chippewa counties the season closes Nov. 30.

Wild duck, including American and mallard, may be hunted from Sept. 7 to Nov. 30. The state law conforms with the federal law in every respect even to prohibiting hunting before sunrise and after sunset. Wood duck and woodcock are the exceptions to the above statement, these birds having no open season. It has been found necessary to provide a closed season for a number of years or permit the extermination of these two varieties.

As many of the huntersmen go to and from their hunting grounds in autos, attention is called to a new law which prohibits hunting or killing of any wild bird from an automobile, motorcycle or other vehicle.

Few Fish Law Changes. In the laws pertaining to game fish fewer changes were made than for game birds and animals. The general open season has been set for May 29, instead of May 30. There are several special provisions for certain waters. The legal length of trout that may be kept has been changed from six inches to seven inches and the season in the counties of Douglas, Bayfield, Iron and Ashland has been made to open fifteen days later than formerly and in the counties of Sheboygan, Fond du Lac and Manitowish to close one month earlier. The length of pike has been changed from 12 to 18 inches and pickerel from 12 to 18 inches. The weight of muskellunge has been changed from 8 to 5 pounds in the round, while the length of black bass remains 10 inches as before. Several lakes in Forest county have been closed against fishing for pickerel for the purpose of giving them a chance to re-stock.

The sturgeon and the spawn and the fry thereof have been favored by a closed season. These fish were in danger of being exterminated so a closed season throughout the year was necessary, but a few years ago they were considered worthless, except for fertilizer, but today command almost as high a price as other rough fish. The sturgeon roe or caviar is highly prized and consequently great effort and ingenious contrivances are made to capture the fish. A fair sized one has a market value of from $20 to $75.

TO BEGIN INSTALLATION OF NEW VOTING MACHINE AT THE STATE CAPITOL

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.] Madison, Wis., Aug. 25.—B. L. Bobbert, the Milwaukee inventor, who will install the electric voting machine in the new capitol for use by the next session of the legislature held a conference yesterday afternoon with the capitol building commission. The bill which passed legislature calls for an appropriation of $12,000 for the purpose. He will begin his work at once.

AMERICAN SKIPPERS SUFFER ANNOYANCES FROM PRIZE COURTS

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] London, Aug. 25.—While the prize court was dealing with the cases of many American ships which have been seized by the British navy, a large number still are detained in British ports. Many announcements, and much expense have resulted to the owners of the ships from the Crown procedure incidental to their detention. The port authorities have demanded considerable sums for pilot fees, and in one case a thousand dollars for dock fees.

The American skipper would protest that he should not pay for a pilot he had not wanted, who had detained him and brought him into the port against the skipper's protests; that he should not pay for keeping his ship at the dock when he was not keeping her there, and did not want to stay there. But the answer is invariable that pilot fees and docking fees must be paid or serious forfeiture result, and rather than incur more serious obligations, these pilot, dock and other charges are paid, although they are for detention which the ship has not sought.

About the only American skipper who has escaped these charges is one who had the good fortune to be deaf. When the port officials threatened him with dire consequences if he did not pay for the pilot who detained him and brought him into port, he shook his head and did not hear. It was the same with the dock fees—he did not hear them. And this skipper, master of the Neches, 3,000 tons, from New York, after more such experiences than any other American sailor, including the sinking of a barge in the Thames for which he was liable for 10,000 pounds, is now sailing the sea with a free ship due to his good fortune in being deaf to all exactions.

AMERICAN SKIPPERS SUFFER ANNOYANCES FROM PRIZE COURTS

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] London, Aug. 25.—While the prize court was dealing with the cases of many American ships which have been seized by the British navy, a large number still are detained in British ports. Many announcements, and much expense have resulted to the owners of the ships from the Crown procedure incidental to their detention. The port authorities have demanded considerable sums for pilot fees, and in one case a thousand dollars for dock fees.

The American skipper would protest that he should not pay for a pilot he had not wanted, who had detained him and brought him into the port against the skipper's protests; that he should not pay for keeping his ship at the dock when he was not keeping her there, and did not want to stay there. But the answer is invariable that pilot fees and docking fees must be paid or serious forfeiture result, and rather than incur more serious obligations, these pilot, dock and other charges are paid, although they are for detention which the ship has not sought.

About the only American skipper who has escaped these charges is one who had the good fortune to be deaf. When the port officials threatened him with dire consequences if he did not pay for the pilot who detained him and brought him into port, he shook his head and did not hear. It was the same with the dock fees—he did not hear them. And this skipper, master of the Neches, 3,000 tons, from New York, after more such experiences than any other American sailor, including the sinking of a barge in the Thames for which he was liable for 10,000 pounds, is now sailing the sea with a free ship due to his good fortune in being deaf to all exactions.

WOMAN'S PAGE

SIDE TALKS

By RUTH CAMERON

THE FAULTS WE HATE.

"She's the most obstinate woman," said my neighbor. "I can't bear her. I don't see how her husband gets along with her. He must be either very stupid or very patient."

In her fervor she laid down her knitting and gazed at me as severely as if I were in some way to blame. I'm not, for I don't even know the woman except by hearsay.

So I squeezed down a desire to laugh and turned the subject by admiring my neighbor's poppies. They are the palmed darlings of her heart, so the severity at once melted.

Why I Wanted to Laugh.

You may wonder why I had to squeeze down a laugh. You see, it's this way. Obstinate is the particular fault for which my neighbor is noted. She is a dear woman, but even those who love her best know that that is her prime fault.

And here she was with evident unconsciousness telling me how she disliked her prototype in the fault of obstinacy.

Do you know I think there is a tendency in all of us to especially dislike our own peculiar faults when they appear in other people, and quite without recognizing them as our own.

This is not the first time I have heard anyone express a dislike for someone whose character resembled his own.

The woman who cannot seem to help trying to dominate her home, her husband, her children and everything and everybody with which she comes into contact, confided to me the other day that she could not overcome her dislike for a certain woman.

Everyone Notices the Resemblance.

And to behold that woman in so like her in temperance that other people often speak of the resemblance.

Again an otherwise charming girl who is inclined to be a wee bit insincere is always ready to say a sharp word—almost the only words of criticism she ever speaks—about anyone who is insincere.

So it goes.

Myself, I have a haunting suspicion that the people I feel antagonistic to are not as unlike me as I could wish.

The moral?

When you find yourself intensely disliking anyone, look out. Or rather look in. If you have a friend who will be frank with you make him tell you if you are like that. And if you find yourself guilty then let your own abhorrence help you overcome the fault.

Question—A great many young people marry when but few facts of life have come before them; they therefore have false opinions, because they have little knowledge. Such marriages are based on amorous sentimentalities. When one ceases to love on account of having outgrown the other intellectually it is not an outrage that they should remain thus united? Or do you think it better for them to try and make a working success of such unions?

—A Subscriber.

Answer—You ask a question to which it is dangerous to give a general answer. The best thing to do depends on many factors, one of which is whether there are children, another the feeling which has taken the place of love; it is passive indifference or active hatred that cannot preserve the home where hate rules, because it isn't a home but a prison.

Glimpses of Married Life

By Mrs. Eva Leonard

"You'll have to see the landlord, Dick, and tell him the roof is leaking. It makes me sick at heart. The paper on the spare room was so old, only last year, and is so pretty, and now that great brown spot has utterly spoiled it. I cried all night from the bedroom."

"Well, I'll have the landlord see the ceiling repapered after the roof is repaired," answered her husband easily.

"And I must have all the paper-hangers' addresses when I had everything in a such a good shape," Nell said, her head in her lap, the picture of despair.

"I don't believe it will make much sense. They can't spread a canvas over the mating, and all you'll have to do is to let them set the furniture out; they'll move it back again," Dick was very cheerful.

"All I have to do," sniffed Nell skeptically. "Much men know about such things. But it's got to be done, for we are likely to have company any time and the room must be ready. So be sure and see the man at once."

"All right," answered Dick as he strode down the walk.

About 11 o'clock a man appeared pushing a handcart containing a bunch of shingles and his tools. He climbed out the attic window and was busily at work repairing the roof when Dick came home to dinner.

"That landlord is a hope he is as prompt with the papering," said Nell, her good humor restored.

"Probably he can get a man soon," answered Dick.

"What does this mean? You look like a scrubwoman," he snapped, taking the pail from her hand. "Hurry and dress. I've brought Mr. Knapp home to supper to-night."

"What does this mean?" she asked, looking at the book-keeper at the best works.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1) I am a young married lady and would like your advice. We have been married almost a year and I don't think anyone else has a better husband than mine. One of the exceptions he never wants to go to Sunday School. I belong to church and before I was married seldom missed church or Sunday school. He does not belong to church although he likes to go, but when it comes to going to Sunday School he has to be coaxed and begged and sometimes then I can't get him to go. We have a fine church and a lot of young people. He will never talk about joining the church and I want him to do so badly before our baby comes. Do you think I coax him too much?

(2) Could a person with almost black hair and brown eyes and a fair skin wear gray?

MRS. AND MISS.

(1) I think you ask too much of your husband when you try to make him go to Sunday School and to join the church. It is very good of him to go as much as he does, and you ought to appreciate it. A man and woman should be just as free after marriage as they were before to follow their own inclinations concerning church.

(2) Gray would be dull and characterless.

AUSTRIAN WOMEN NOW DO ALL WORK CONNECTED WITH FUNERAL SERVICE

[By Associated Press.]

Genova, Aug. 25.—According to the Austrian newspapers, women are now employed in Vienna as undertakers and gravediggers, and generally for all work connected with funerals.

Letters May Be Addressed To Mrs. Thompson, in Care of The Gazette.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1) A friend is coming to see me. He has never been here before and I am the only person he knows. He says he would stay at the hotel, but I insisted that he stay at my house, thinking that would be better for him. He is a schoolroom teacher and the thing to do there are no men or boys in our home. He has never seen me except once and I shall not mention his staying or where he shall stay.

(2) What do you think would be better for him to wear in the schoolroom to teach? Would a light weight wool skirt and white blouse be all right? And do you think straps over the shoulders would look nice or should they be left off for school wear?

(3) Do you think white rubber-soled pumps are proper for school wear, or are they too sporty? I know some rural teachers who wear them, but I have never seen them worn in the city.

(4) I have a friend in a city where relatives are. We have corresponded for five years and he has always said he cared for me more than anyone. I wrote the last letter two months ago. He has not answered. I intended to spend a week in that city with my relatives. Once before when I was in the city I went. But I did it because I thought he was angry at me. He was very glad to see me and when I told him he had been there a week he wanted me to tell him the next time I was coming and he would call. Shall I send him a card giving the address of the place I am to visit and ask him to call? Or shall I let him go? I care a great deal for him because he has always treated me as a gentleman. Will you treat a lady?

FLORENCE.

(1) If your mother wants him to

Household Hints

BREADS, BUNS, BISCUITS.

Soft Gingerbread—Three-fourths cup sugar, half cup butter, one cup molasses, one teaspoon each cloves, cinnamon and ginger, one scant spoon soda dissolved in one cup boiling water, two and one-half cups flour (three cups if needed). Add two well beaten eggs the last thing before baking.

Egless Gingerbread—Half cup Orleans molasses, half cup granulated sugar, one tablespoon melted lard, one teaspoon ginger, one heaping teaspoon soda, in one cup boiling water, add flour enough to make thin batter; put all together before mixing; mix well.

Cornbread—One egg, half cup sugar, half cup butter, one tablespoon butter, one and one-half cups sweet milk, two cups flour, one cup cornmeal, two teaspoons baking powder.

Nut Bread—One egg, three and one-half cups flour, three heaping teaspoons baking powder, one cup or one-fourth pound pecans (ground), one pinch salt, one scant milk, one egg, add salt, one scant dry ingredients; three (dishes) mix with eggs and milk; put in pans and let rise half hour. Bake forty-five minutes.

One-pound cake—One empty one-pound baking powder cans to bake bread in and they turn out fine, making dainty sandwiches for afternoon luncheon, or can be served plain.

Buns—One cup yeast, one cup water, one tablespoon lard, two tablespoons sugar, one teaspoon salt, enough flour to make a nice batter. Beat thoroughly, set to rise until light, when light enough flour not to make a soft dough, let rise again, then mold into rolls, set to rise and when light bake thirty minutes. This will make twenty rolls.

One quart flour, three teaspoons baking powder, one-half cup granulated sugar, one-half cup each of salt and cinnamon. Sift all together three times. Rub in two tablespoons lard (not melted). Add one beaten egg and sweet milk enough to make like biscuit dough. Bake same as biscuits.

Buns—When baking bread, before mixing butter and the morning save one quart of the sponge. Thicken this and let rise until light, then add two-thirds cup sugar and lard size of a large egg, mix until soft, let rise a while, then work down, let rise again and make into cakes about size of an egg, then mash each cake with the hand in greased pans (not touching). Let rise again until light, then bake from twelve to fifteen minutes, or until a light brown, in a hot oven. They require a little over half hour for bread, as they should bake quickly.

"Sunny Smile" Biscuit—One egg one-half cup sugar and a little nutmeg, mix together; two and one-half cups sifted flour, two teaspoons salt, one cup milk. Mix flour and milk alternately with first mixture and bake in gem pans in moderate oven.

Drop Biscuit—Two heaping cups flour, two heaping teaspoons baking powder, half teaspoon salt, one heaping tablespoon lard and one cup cold water. Mix well with spoon and drop on greased pans. These biscuits are easily made and very delicious served warm.

To Freshen Cakes—Dip cold biscuits in cold water and place them in a tin or thick paper sack in a hot oven long enough to become heated thoroughly. They will be as good as when freshly baked.

Parker House Rolls—One pint scalded milk. Let cool and add two tablespoons each of sugar, lard and yeast; a little salt. In water mix in a tin or thick paper sack in a hot oven long enough to become heated thoroughly. They will be as good as when freshly baked.

Breakfast Muffins—Two cups flour, two eggs, one cup milk (sweet), two teaspoons baking powder, pinch of salt, put into a hot muffin pan and bake.

Corn Meal Muffins—Three-fourths cup corn meal, one and one-half cups flour, one teaspoon baking powder, one-half teaspoon salt, two tablespoons melted butter, one egg, one cup milk. Mix and sift dry materials, add milk gradually. Bake twenty-five minutes in buttered gem pans. This recipe makes twelve muffins.

AN ELECTRIC LIGHT ON BABY CARRIAGE LATEST IN CLEVELAND

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Cleveland, Aug. 25.—When Robert Sheldon Matthews, Jr., two, goes out for an airing at night he rides in what is probably the only electrically lighted baby carriage in the world.

In the top of the canopy is an eight-candle power electric light. A red and green light are on either side of the footpiece and in the center is a brilliant stream of light.

Baby Robert never enjoyed riding in the dark. His cries disturbed his fond parents. So Robert's father conceived the idea of wiring the perambulator.

GERMAN WOMEN WORK BY THOUSANDS IN THE DORTMUND IRON WORKS

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Dortmund, Germany, Aug. 25.—Women have so far supplanted men in one of the large industries of Dortmund that there are now 7,000 doing the ordinary work of their husbands or brothers, while only 1,000 more are seeking positions.

Iron works have to do work customarily considered too heavy for women. About one quarter of the women are those whose husbands are at sea, and the balance are widows, and the balance are unmarried. The number who have to be dismissed because of inability to do the work is comparatively small.

RETRIBUTION IS URGED UPON ALIEN STUDENTS AT GERMAN SCHOOLS

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Cologne, Aug. 25.—With the complete figures of the number of students from neutral foreign states who visited German universities during the last semester now at hand, the Koelnische Zeitung, foreseeing a tremendous influx when peace shall have come, decides that some restriction should be placed on foreigners in the universities.

Shortly before the war there was such a large number of Russians at the University of Halle that the would-be German students could find no place for themselves. Such a situation never happened again, the Koelnische declares, in arguing against unrestricted admission to the German institutions of learning. It also cites the case of the Russian student at the University of Berlin, suspected of espionage at the outbreak of the war, who openly shouted words of contempt at all things German. This should teach a lesson for the future, the paper declares.

Notwithstanding the war, the University of Berlin had, during the semester, no less than 1488 students from foreign countries, including Austria, The conjunctive was Swiss, Rumanian, Bulgarian, Greek and Turkish. Only a few Americans were left, principally the Koelnische suggests, because they believed what the American papers said about "starved-out Germany."

CLIMATIC CONDITIONS CAUSED HIGH WATERS IN SOUTHERN WISCONSIN

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Madison, Wis., Aug. 25.—That climatic conditions unusual in their nature are responsible for high water in southern Wisconsin lakes and streams is the fact deduced by the state railroad commission in a study of these conditions in the Madison lakes. The engineering department of the commission found that the rainfall for this season is about normal for the past ten years, but the temperature for the past four months is several degrees below normal; that sunshine during May was 17 per cent, in June, 13 per cent, and July, 13 per cent less than normal.

It is also noted that the wind velocity has been reduced from an average of about 10 miles an hour to about seven miles an hour this season. These unfavorable weather conditions have not been conducive to rapid evaporation, and the high water levels of this season have been the result.

PARENTS SACRIFICE TO PAY BAD CHECKS

Father of Agnes Bumgartner Hopes to Make Good Checks Passed by Daughter.

Over in Detroit, John Bumgartner and his wife are slaving and sacrificing everything they have in an effort to save their daughter, Agnes, now serving a term of eleven months working in the Rock county asylum for the insane from other prison sentences after she has fulfilled the penalty imposed by the Janesville court.

A few weeks ago Mr. Bumgartner visited his daughter who is in the charge of Superintendent C. S. Whipple. He stated his intentions of saving his daughter if it took all he possessed. "I expect to make restitution for all the bad checks passed by my daughter," he said. "I am doing it because I know she is a good girl, and because she is not a criminal. I want to save her from arrest when her time is ended here. I shall take her home and do all in my power to give her a fair chance."

Agnes Bumgartner began her eleven months' sentence imposed by Judge Maxfield, last May, for attempting to pass a fraudulent check in this city. She was committed to jail under the commitment act and was immediately hired out to C. S. Whipple at the county farm. She has been serving in the capacity of a nurse at $3 a week, her wages being the only thing that has kept her from whence they come.

BIRDS SHOW LITTLE FRIGHT DESPITE FIRE OF HEAVY ARTILLERY

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Berlin, Aug. 25.—Experiments and observations made in between times at the various battle fronts by bird lovers have revealed some striking characteristics of the feathered broods that have not been frightened from their accustomed haunts by the war. Quite as unusual as any other conclusion is the showing that crows, from generations of experience, fear rifle fire but not artillery fire, while song birds, never having known the fear of the hunter and his rifle, break into song when the guns are fired, but are alarmed at the tremendous explosions of shells.

Even the trained artillery horses continue to show more fright at shell explosions than the birds. The crows for instance do not even trouble to take to flight when a shell lands near them but does not explode, and only rise for an instant when it does go off. But when the rifle begins to pop they put as much distance as possible between themselves and the trenches.

Many of the soldiers have carriages in their trenches and have conducted numerous experiments with them. Usually the discharge of a rifle is a signal for them to sing, and even the sound of breaking glass will bring the same result. The same is true of a great extent of the wild song birds that abound, especially along the French front.

The birds of course display a sharpness of vision that even a good telescope will not equal, and many times the warning of an attack has come first of all from the crows and other birds rising in alarm at some movement of the sentries. At all their watchfulness no shot has been detected.

PATHEIC TRAGEDIES OF WAR ARE ENACTED IN PARIS WAR BUILDING

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Paris, Aug. 25.—The "Souvenir Despoir" is the name given to a dark gray building in the rue de l'Universite, where nearest relatives come by appointment to claim the bodies of soldiers killed in battle. The estate of the soldiers as it comes from the hands of his regiment, his comrades, a surgeon or a hospital may be a fortune or a trifle.

Famously mementos, miniatures, medals worn as talismans next the heart in battle; cigarette lighters, broken pocket knives, rings and trunks, made precious to the bearer by secrets which have gone with him into the grave; last requests, wills written on scraps of paper, unfinished and blood-spattered letters or even on pieces of shirt in blood, sometimes nothing more than the soldier's metal identification disk—all these constitute an inheritance in the eyes of the administrative staff.

Sometimes it is the sanitary service that takes charge of a soldier's belongings in the field, sometimes it is the municipality in which he dies. Inventories are made in duplicate and objects are forwarded to the ministry of war where all articles are checked over. Occasionally medals or identification disks that have been picked up on the battle field or in pockets confided by severely wounded men to comrades when they thought their end near are sent in; later on it is learned that the owners had been taken prisoner or picked up by ambulances and saved.

Along the dark, winding corridors of the building some of the most pathetic tragedies of the war are daily enacted. Widows, fathers, mothers, brothers, sisters, orphans wait their turn, in a long somber line, and all class distinctions are forgotten in the administrative staff.

"The faces of some of these unfortunate people become familiar to us," said one of the administrators. "One woman with five children, all under twelve, has made four visits here. She came for the effects of her husband, two brothers and a cousin."

How to Clear Away Pimples

Bathe your face for several minutes with resitol soap and hot water, then apply a little resitol ointment very gently. Let this stay on ten minutes, and wash off with resitol soap and more hot water, finishing with a dash of cold water to close the pores.

Do this once or twice a day, and you will be astonished at how quickly the healing resitol medication soothes and cleanses the pores, removes pimples and blackheads, and leaves the complexion clear and velvety.

Resitol ointment and resitol soap stop itching instantly and speedily heal skin humors, sores, burns, wounds and chafing. Sold by all druggists.

SOAP FOR BABY'S TENDER SKIN

The regular use of resitol soap is usually enough to prevent those distressing rashes and chafings to which most babies are subject. This is so, first, because resitol soap is absolutely pure and free from harsh alkali, and second, because it contains the resitol medication, on which so many physicians rely for skin troubles.

Non-Resident Raise NOT EFFECTIVE THIS YEAR SHOWS VAN HISE (SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE) Madison, Wis., Aug. 25.—President C. R. Civil Strife

"And then—there was yet a chance. While there was life there was hope, and I was soldier enough, and sufficiently reckless, to accept of any opportunity. There might occur a relaxation in the vigilance of the guard, some delay at Lewisburg, possibly a forwarding of me to headquarters at Charleston—some sudden, unexpected opening through which I could squeeze. I was ready enough to try, however desperate the occasion; and, if such a chance did serve, the end might not come merely with escape. I could see her again; talk with her face to face. It became a fascinating dream, an inspiration—at last a grim determination.

Through the mud we rode steadily on, following the pike that curved along the base of the mountains, and finally into the streets of Lewisburg.

CHAPTER XV.

I Choose Death.

I knew the town well, and few changes had occurred since last I walked those streets hand in hand with my father. It had not grown any larger, and thus far the war had wrought little damage. The most of life in the sleepy old town centered about the Frost hotel, a three-story wooden structure, where, the officers of the garrison lodged, and the courthouse, a dignified edifice of red brick, a block beyond, where in other days my father presided on the bench, now completely surrounded by a military camp. There were more Federal soldiers here than I had expected to see, but a remark exchanged between two of my guard informed me that most of these had arrived during the night—a regiment of Ohio troops, and a battery of light artillery, destined to assist in a contemplated attack on Covington.

The head of our little column halted in front of the hotel, but Whitlock shouted command to the sergeant, and we rode on past, the guard closing up tightly. I kept my face straight ahead, determined to make no sign, but, nevertheless, I had a glimpse of Noreen, standing at her horse's head, and, for an instant, I felt certain her eyes were resting on me. Then Raymond spoke to her, touching her sleeve familiarly with his hand to attract attention, and she smiled up into his face, as if in answer to some witty remark. This was the last glimpse I had as we clattered on down the street.

At the courthouse steps the sergeant turned me over to the officer of the day, and I was marched into the basement. The old jail had evidently been burned, for I could see the roof had fallen in, and the stone walls were blackened with smoke, but the lower story of the courthouse was battle-proof enough, the windows barred, the walls strong and thick. The place in which they thrust me had at one time protected the county records, was perhaps nine feet square, with one narrow window high up in the wall, and an iron door. The floor and walls were of stone, and the ceiling beyond each. A soldier threw in a box, to be utilized as a seat, together with a couple of blankets.

"There, Johnny," he said carelessly, "I guess you'll stay here till you're wanted. There'll be some grub along after awhile."

The iron door clanged behind him, and I heard the sharp click of a heavy lock, then regular steps pausing back and forth across the stone floor, proof that a sentinel had been posted. There seemed little need of one as I sat down on the box and stared disconsolately about. The window afforded ample light, but no hope of escape. The shelves on which had once reposed the records of Green Briar county were of iron, as a safeguard against fire, with a sheet of iron at their back, concealing the wall behind. My heart gave a sudden leap. As a boy I had played about this building, invading every nook and corner. I could even recall when those shelves were first installed, and I had sat almost where I was sitting then, and watched the workmen bolt them into their present position. It was before my father bought the place out on the ridge, and we were living only a block down the street. Those shelves rested against the big chimney, and there was an opening leading into it, across which they had nailed a tin protector before they fastened the iron to the wall.

If I could once get in behind that iron plate the way out would not be such a hard or difficult one to travel.

I Gave Small Heed to the Glance of Satisfaction He Gave Me.

The chimney was large; I recalled standing upright in the fireplace on the floor above, and looking up to where I could perceive the light of the sky. It was constructed of irregular bits of stone, which would afford lodgment for the feet, and grip for the hands in climbing—no easy job, of course, but not impossible for one reckless enough to make the attempt.

But how could I hope to pry loose that protecting sheet of iron? Where could I discover a tool to give me the necessary leverage to dislodge those bolts? Could one of those supports be unscrewed or twisted off? If so, it might prove strong enough for the purpose. I stepped hastily across, and tested two of them with my hands, but found both these firm and immovable. I dare not exercise much force in fear the noise might be overheard, and besides it was time the jailer brought me in some food. So I went back to my seat on the box, and waited, my eyes on the iron, and my mind eagerly working on some plan which seemed feasible. I had a half dozen keys in my pocket, and a broken cartridge shell in my belt—nothing else available. The searchers had stripped me clean. A careful survey of the floor revealed only a twisted nail, but there was something caught in the iron bars of the window; from where I sat it looked like the half of a broken horseshoe. I got up to see, but quickly sat down again—there was someone at the door.

It opened, and a soldier stood aside while two men entered. One was Fox, the other a heavy-set, gray mustached officer, in the uniform of a colonel of infantry. The captain greeted me gravely, and extended his hand.

"I would far rather meet you as I did before," he said, "but war gives us no choice."

"I took my chances and have no complaint," I answered heartily, for I liked the man. "I presume there is no doubt as to my fate?"

"I fear not, but the matter is not in my hands, for which I am grateful. This is Colonel Pickney, in command."

I bowed, and our eyes met. The face confronting me was strong and resolute, its expression that of regret.

"A very young man, Captain Fox," he said to his companion, "which adds to the unpleasantness of such duty. Your name is Wyatt?"

"Yes, sir."

"You claim connection with the Confederate service—an officer?"

"A sergeant of artillery, sir."

"You have the appearance of an intelligent man, Sergeant Wyatt, and must realize the seriousness of your position. I am sure I need not dwell upon the fate which befalls a spy when captured by the enemy. In your case there seems to be no defense possible—you wear Federal uniform; were within our lines, and papers have been found on you of a most incriminating character. It is my understanding you make no denial."

"None, whatever, sir; it would be useless."

"There is always a way in which mercy can be extended," he went on earnestly. "Doubtless you possess information which would be of the utmost value to us. I shall gladly use my influence on your behalf if the circumstances warrant."

I glanced aside at Fox, and caught the look of appeal in his face; then back into the expectant eyes of the colonel.

"You have authority to make me this proposition?" I asked quietly.

"I am in command of this camp, and pledge you my influence with General Ramsay."

I stood motionless a moment, endeavoring to straighten the matter out in my mind. When I spoke it was as briefly as possible.

"I can only thank you, Colonel Pickney, and respectfully decline. I will not answer your questions, sir."

Fox gripped my arm, and as I glanced at him, I was surprised to see a mist of tears in his eyes.

"Wyatt," he exclaimed, making no pretense at calmness, "do not be hasty in your decision. I would not counsel you to any act of dishonor, but surely some compromise is possible. I not only ask you to consider the situation from your own standpoint, but also from ours. I accompanied Colonel Pickney in the hope I might have some influence." He hesitated an instant, as though doubtful of his words.

"Perhaps I should say, my boy, that another urged me to come."

"Another?"

"Yes—a lady."

My head swam, my heart beating like a triphammer.

"Do—do you mean, Captain Fox, that she actually asked you to urge me to save myself by such an act?"

"No, Wyatt; not that. She requested me to accompany Colonel Pickney, and do all I could on your behalf."

I drew a long breath of relief, my mind clearing, my resolve strengthened. She did care then! God knew I was glad; and she had not urged me to an act of dishonor. And I knew, I understood—she wished me to realize that she was not indifferent to my fate, that her interest was not dead; and she had sent the message to me by the only man she could trust to rightly deliver it. My heart lightened, and my lips smiled.

"I thank you for your message, Captain Fox," I said sincerely, clasping his hand. "Tell her how glad I made me. But it cannot change my decision; I will answer no questions."

"This is your final reply, sergeant?" the colonel's voice had hardened; his eyes had lost their friendliness. "Good day, sir."

The door opened to the rap of his knuckles, and the two men passed out, neither one glancing back at me. The sentry asked a question, and I heard Pickney answer:

"Yes, set the food within, but let no one communicate with the prisoner except on my written order. I will have another sentry posted above."

A soldier entered, bearing a camp ration and a pannikin of water, and placed these on the box. He said nothing, and the colonel stood beside the door watching until I was left alone. I put the food on the floor untouched and sat down on the box.

I wanted to live; I was young, ambitious, and I loved that girl. I realized this truth clearly, and it became the one ceaseless incentive to effort. Her face arose before me, and I felt that her message was meant for my encouragement. She wanted me to live; wished me to know that she was not indifferent; trusted me to accomplish all that a man could. And I must act now, if at all.

I ate the food, not from any sense of hunger, but because I needed it to keep up my strength. I was alone, unwatched; there was no place where an eye could peer in on my movements. I dragged the box over to the window, stood on it, and managed to dislodge the bit of iron entangled in the grating. It proved to be part of a discarded horseshoe, hung there carelessly by some farrier and contained three thin-headed nails. With difficulty I loosened one of these and fitted the sharp edge into a screwhead of a shelf bracket. The nail afforded little purchase, and I tried three of the screws before finding one loose enough to turn. By this time my fingers were numb and bleeding, yet the final success set my heart throbbing with exultation.

The removal of the screw, which by chance was the lower one, enabled me to insert the remnant of horseshoe beneath the bracket iron. Slowly, fearful of creating alarm, the improvised lever wrenched the bracket free, until I was enabled to get firm grip on it with my hands. With foot braced, and every muscle strained, I worked that bit of iron back and forth, tearing it free, until I knew that another wrench would separate it entirely from its fastenings. Then I forced it back into place again, pressed down the loosened screws, carefully gathered together the slight debris littering the floor, and cast it into a dark corner. The bracket seemed as solid as ever. Now I must wait for night.

CHAPTER XVI.

Under Death Sentence.

It was dreary waiting, for every unusual sound reaching me brought with it a throb of fear. That my fate was already practically settled I knew, but how long the delay might be remained a problem. Fox, I felt convinced, would use whatever influence he possessed to delay action, and there was a faint hope in my mind also that Noreen might even make a plea to higher authorities in my behalf. I dare not believe she would, but the vague dream of such a thing recurred again and again to my mind.

To learn all I could I dragged the box to a position below the window, and standing on it, managed to gain a narrow glimpse without, the vista revealing a flap of dirty tent cloth and part of an army wagon backed up against the building, leaving barely enough space for the guard to pace back and forth the length of his beat.

So I Went Back to My Seat on the Box.

I could see his blue-glazed legs, with the white stripe, cross and recross in front of me. I tested the strength of the iron grating with my hands, but the bars were firmly imbedded and immovable.

The sun must have been well down in the west when Fox returned. I had been expecting him; trusting to his friendly interest, and with a fleeting hope that Noreen might commission him to bring me some further message. Yet the moment I looked into his face, shadowed by the fading light, I realized that he brought no encouraging news. My heart sank, but I kept a smile on my lips.

"I expected to be out of here before now," I said meaningly; "yet I judge from your expression there is no reprieve."

"And no hope of one, Wyatt," he answered regretfully. "The evidence against you is too strong. The delay in convening a court has been caused by the scarcity of officers in camp. Our forage trains are just beginning to return, but it is now so late that Colonel Pickney has decided to hold you prisoner until morning. I waited until the order was issued before coming here. The court-martial is set for eight o'clock."

"I am thankful for even that delay. There is, I presume no doubt as to the result?"

"None, so far as I can learn. You are a soldier, Wyatt, and may as well face the truth. I have urged mercy on Colonel Pickney, until he finally ordered me to drop the subject. He is a strict disciplinarian, a bit of a martinet, indeed, and inclined to take the advice of a regular army officer in such matters, rather than rely on volunteers. Has Raymond any special reason to dislike you?"

"Only that I impersonated him in this masquerade."

Dr. Osler on Tuberculosis

Dr. William Osler, one of the foremost of living medical men, formerly of Johns Hopkins, Baltimore, and now Regius Professor of Medicine at Oxford, says in his "Practice of Medicine" (1892), on page 248: "The healing of pulmonary tuberculosis is shown clinically by the recovery of patients in whose sputa elastic tissue and bacilli have been found. In the granulation products and associated pneumonia a scar tissue is formed, while the smaller accessory areas become impregnated with lime salts. To such conditions alone should the term healing be applied."

Many eminent medical authorities have testified to the efficacy of lime salts in the treatment of tuberculosis, and the success of Eckman's Alternative in this and allied throat and bronchial affections may be due partly to the fact that it contains a lime salt so combined with other valuable ingredients as to be easily assimilated.

Widespread use of this remedy in numerous cases of tuberculosis, many of which appear to have yielded completely to it—justifies our belief that it is worth a trial, unless some other treatment already is succeeding. It contains no opiates, narcotics or habit-forming drugs. We make no promises concerning it any more than reputable physicians give promises with their prescriptions, but we know of many cases in which it HAS HELPED.

Your druggist has it or can get it, or you can send direct to Eckman Laboratory, Philadelphia.

off with a dollar." "I am very sorry, father," said the youth, contritely; and then added, "but you don't happen to have the dollar with you?"

In a town of Maryland one Bill Morton appeared before the postmaster one morning, and the following colloquy occurred:

"Morning, Mr. Postmaster."

"Morning, Bill."

"Has Tom Moore been in for his mail yet?"

"No."

"Will you be here when he comes?"

"I guess so."

"Well, when he comes in will you tell him that on his way from the cheese factory I wish he'd stop and get that pig of Herman Stutz's and take it down to Henry Parker's, and tell Henry I said he could have it for fix that bridge and throw in them russet lines instead of the old black ones; and if he won't trade, tell Tom to bring the pig down to my place and put it in the extra pen, and be sure and shut that door to the hen house, or all the chickens'll get out. Sure there ain't no mail? Morning, Mr. Postmaster."

"Morning, Bill."

After suffering a long time with toothache the young colored girl got up her courage enough to go to the dentist. The moment he touched the tooth she began to scream.

"Look here," he said, "you mustn't yell like that. Don't you know I'm a 'painless dentist'?"

"Well, mebbe yo' is painless, sah," she said, "but Ah isn't."

Thin Men and Women

DO YOU WANT TO GET FAT AND BE STRONG.

The trouble with most thin folks who wish to gain weight is that they insist on digesting their food, or stuffing it with greasy foods; rubbing on useless "flesh creams," or following some foolish physical culture stunt, while the real cause of thinness goes untouched. You cannot get fat until your digestive tract properly assimilates the food you eat.

There is a preparation known to reliable druggists almost everywhere, which seemingly embodies the missing elements needed by the digestive organs to help them convert food into rich, fat-laden blood. This preparation is called Sargol and much remarkable testimony is given as to its successful use in flesh building.

Sargol, which comes in the form of at meals and mixing with the digest at meals an dining with the digesting food, tends to prepare its fat, flesh and muscle building elements so that the blood can readily accept and carry them to the starved portions of the body. You can readily picture the transformation that additional and previously lacking flesh-making material should bring with your cheeks filling out, hollows about your neck, shoulders and bust disappearing and your taking on from 10 to 20 pounds of solid healthy flesh. Sargol is harmless, inexpensive, efficient. All leading druggists of this vicinity have it and are authorized to refund your money if weight increase is not obtained as per the guarantee found in each large package.

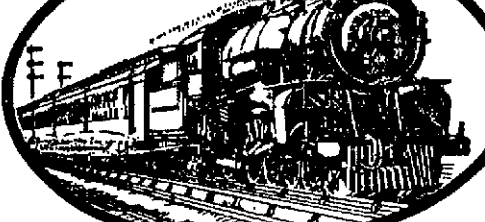

NOTE.—Sargol is recommended only as a flesh builder and while excellent results in cases of nervous indigestion, etc., have been reported care should be taken about using it unless a gain of weight is desired.

BUSINESS FAILURES

RARE IN WISCONSIN

State Has a Remarkable Record With Less Than a Half of One Per Cent of Firms Failing

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE)

Madison, Wis., Aug. 25.—That business concerns in this state are operating along sane, constructive lines is shown in a report just received by B. G. Packer, director of the division of immigration of the state department of commerce and labor, giving the percentage of commercial failures for 1914. Of 49 states, Wisconsin presents the most remarkable record, having 48.539 firms engaged in business and a percentage of failures less than one-half of one per cent. Only one state, and that with but one-fourth the number of firms, exhibits so gratifying a showing. States having the highest and lowest percentages are as follows:

No. of Firms	No. of Failures	Pct. of Failures
Oregon.....16,485	489	2.98
Florida.....12,794	404	2.92
Washington..23,536	495	2.09
Wisconsin..48,539	235	.48
So. Dakota..10,220	46	.45

In proportion to number of firms doing business, the high commercial standard of Badger business men is even more strikingly indicated by the report, and is especially significant in view of Wisconsin liberal exemption laws.

HAS BEEN POOR YEAR FOR TOBACCO PLANTS

Has Zeen Poor Year.....
Hail Storms and Cold Weather Spell Doom for Crop This Season.—
Frosts May Blast Last Hope.

This year will go down in the history of the tobacco growers as being one of the most strenuous and hardest on plants for some time. Almost incessant rains have soaked the fields and early in the season delayed planting and resetting way into the month of July. After the young plants had been replanted the cold snap came on and then more rain, which kept the farmers from working in the fields. For a spell the weather was sunny and the week or two of warm nights brought high hopes to the hearts of the farmers. Now the plants, which are well on the way to maturity, are threatened with total destruction by frosts and extreme cold weather.

Last week has brought a variety of weather, some of it just what is needed for the belated corn and tobacco. The storm of last Saturday night, with severe winds and too cool to mature these crops, which still need a month of warm weather. The rains have also been accompanied by strips of hail in a few growing districts. Considerable topping is being done now but at least half the crop has not yet reached that point.

We learn that a little buying in the hail-out districts has commenced for stemmings purposes. A few lots of 14 remnants have also lately been moved at low grade prices.

While a little better feeling is noted in the eastern markets regarding old leaf, the movement as yet is largely confined to small orders which local packers do not share in much. The shipments out of storage reach about 200 cases to all points since last report.

Orfordville was one of the places to be hardest struck by the hail of last week. The storm of last Saturday night had been much worse, but was bad enough to catch several of the tobacco growers and destroy their crops to a considerable extent. The rain was followed by a heavy fall of hail which picked a crop here and there south of the village on towards Newark. Of course some of these fields may yet produce a considerable amount of low grade, but it is doubtful if the growers would realize sufficient to pay to handle such a crop. Some years hail cut tobacco brings a good price, and the dealers are telling us that good grades will not be bought at a fancy price this year owing to the market conditions caused by the war.

The market in old tobacco is very slow and there is very little being sold of last year's crop. These conditions are due partly to the fact that dealers are curious to know the outcome of this year's crop before disposing of what they have and partly to the crippled market in general due to the war. Local dealers report a very slow market for old tobacco. There is a demand for the weed for foreign countries but no safe transportation.

On Wednesday there will be a Sunday school picnic at the home of Mrs. L. E. Brown. A picnic dinner will be served, and games will be the form of entertainment.

TOWN LINE

Town Line, Aug. 23.—Mr. and Mrs. Will Loomer and daughter Ruth spent Sunday with Rockton friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Plumb were week end visitors at Brodhead.

Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Eddy and son Frank spent Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Eddy, Beloit.

Mr. and Mrs. F. R. Eldredge visited at the home of Mr. Eldredge's aunt, Mrs. Sally Andrews, at Stillman Valley, Sunday.

Miss Lorraine Hegemann of Beloit has been the guest of Miss Gladys Jackson for a week.

Miss G. O. Bosche of Milwaukee is at home for a stay of some length.

John Loeffler, who has been seriously ill as the result of a sunstroke, which he suffered about a week ago, while threshing, much improved.

Miss Jessie Walters has returned from several days' visit with relatives at Footville.

Mrs. G. O. Bosche of Milwaukee is spending the week with her sister, Mrs. Eckelmann, and other relatives.

Mrs. Bosche was accompanied here by her niece and nephew, Myrtle and Henry Eckelmann, who have been spending the week in Milwaukee.

Mr. and Mrs. F. R. Eldredge and children, River road, attended the fifth annual reunion of the Atwood family Thursday at the home of Walter Myers, Pocatonia. The occasion was most pleasant. Ninety were present, the states of Iowa, Wisconsin and Illinois were represented. Of the seven living members of the original Atwood family, five were able to be present. Mrs. Irene Meyers, Pocatonia, and Mrs. Anna Wilson, Zion City, were present, and the three brothers, Philip, Joseph and Patton Atwood were also able to attend. Two sisters, because of feeble health, were unable to attend. Two brothers died last January.

Mrs. C. H. Eckelmann and children, Mrs. G. O. Bosche and Albert Eddy, visited Sunday at the home of Harry Eddy, at Beloit.

David and Throne visited Town Line friends a couple of days last week.

Merwyn Martin, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Martin, received an ugly cut on his leg Monday afternoon from an ax which his father was using to cut up the branches of trees. The ax glanced, striking the boy just below the knee. The wound required several stitches to close. He will be confined to the house for several days.

Mrs. Bert Gibbons entertained Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Gibbons and granddaughter Helen and Frank Conley of Sharon Wednesday.

James Keeley and family spent Thursday at the home of Ira Larrabee.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Knoops and daughters Anna and Edna visited Sunday at the home of John Wilmitz, town of Janesville.

Edward Reed of Janesville was guests Saturday of Evelyn and Ralph Larrabee and Mr. and Mrs. Fred Larrabee.

Miss Violet Park visited her sister, Mrs. Henry Pierce, on Friday and called on friends here.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Sherman and family and Mr. and Mrs. Gus Aaby and family motored to Ft. Atkinson on Sunday.

Mr. F. B. Sherman will enter a display of apples at the Beloit fair.

Six men who are working on the long distance telephone line were entertained at G. L. Richardson's the first of this week.

MOVIE SHOW PROVES TO BE BIG SUCCESS

Mammoth Production of "Costly Films" Shown at Sinnissippi Club Tuesday Evening Appreciated By Packed House.

By eight o'clock the Sinnissippi Golf clubhouse was packed and even the "standing room only" card had been taken down. Still many were eager to see the production stood in the doorway. All available chairs, benches and seats of all kinds were brought in to accommodate the large audience. This was the state of affairs at the Sinnissippi Golf club moving picture show, given last night at the clubhouse, after a delicious six-thirty o'clock dinner and an afternoon of golf and cards.

The first number on the program for the evening, although given by local talent, was presented with professional style and cleverness. It was a sleight of hand performance given by Kenneth Parker. For fully ten minutes he held the audience spellbound and mystified at the appearance and disappearance of a series of little red balls, which he handled with the ease and as smoothly as the great Keller himself.

After this short act a great stereopticon picture was shown, showing clips from the lives of our most prominent citizens. Some in the youthful days of courting and others in the everyday routine of life. The scenes, both day and night, of the city were thrown on the screen, such as the "nation building" Crystal Springs Park, and moonlight scenes of the metropolis. One of the feature pictures was a scene from George Parker's farm, showing the owner performing some of the many tricks of the trade.

The first film was a George Ade comedy film, depicting the fate of a young country girl who turned down her perfectly good country lover to go on the stage, but finally ended up in a cheap hotel in a "burg" where the company went "broke" and from where she wired home to father for car fare.

Next film was a very stirring melodramatic play of college days. However, although it ended wrong, the heroine being killed early in the story and the hero following her later, it caused a thrill in the laughter of the audience, its heart stirring story holding them spellbound throughout.

Following this film was a reel of views from Beloit and Janesville taken in the past few days. The views were in winter, showing the efficiency of the fire departments of the two cities, the Janesville fire, and the cyclone of a few years ago. These were accompanied by remarks from the announcer, who ably explained each scene and kept the audience laughing during the entire film.

The last film was the Keystone comedy film, which was a two-reeler and which showed the horrors of war in a vivid and realistic manner, probably taken in the one of the great powder mills of this country. The hero was a man who had many narrow escapes, being chased by shells from a large 16-inch cannon and several times being locked in the powder mill tied to a barrel of dynamite. Is this a clue to Point 7?

How gum benefits the teeth

DENTAL research has found that only 1.2% of the Maoris of New Zealand have any decay of teeth. Next come the Esquimaux, only 1.4% of those examined having teeth unsound. Third rank certain tribes of Canadian Indians.

Some years ago the British Dental Association examined the teeth of 10,500 English school children. 86% had some decay of the teeth!

Why? From leading dental authorities we get this answer:

Races having the best teeth chew foods which excite the salivary glands. The Maori flavors food with the juice of the tutu-berry—a keen exciter of the salivary flow. The Canadian Indian chews wood of the sugar pine.

The human saliva is endorsed by these same authorities as Nature's own mouth wash—the best conservator of the teeth—best since man began.

In encouraging a normal flow of saliva, the clean, pure Sterling Gum brings distinct aid to the health of the teeth.

It acts against what dentists call "oral (mouth) stagnation."

The importance of this fact may lead you to suppose it the 7th Sterling point—but no; that 7th point is still as much a mystery as ever.

MISS MESSERSCHMIDT
WEDS YOUNG ENGINEER

Whitewater, Aug. 25.—Miss Margaret Messerschmidt and Levi J. Carter were married yesterday morning at ten o'clock at the residence of Rev. Zutz of Port Atkinson. They were attended by Miss Henrietta Erickson of this city and Harry Pearson of Milwaukee. The ceremony was witnessed by about fifty relatives and friends and was followed with a bountiful repast at the Messerschmidt home. The bride is the only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Messerschmidt, and has always lived in Whitewater. She is a popular young lady and has many friends. Mr. Carter is connected with the Raus Engineering company, and came here when work opened on the new railroad. While here he has made friends who admire him and his choice of a home companion. Mr. and Mrs. Carter left for the honeymoon on a short wedding journey, after which they will make their home in Milwaukee.

The annual picnic of St. Patrick's congregation was held yesterday at the city park, and a large number partook of the excellent lunch served at noon. The feature of the day was the ball game between East Troy and Whitewater and was a fine contest. For ten innings they battled hard and the luck of baseball gave East Troy the game by a 4 to 3 win. The visitors started the first with a score and added two more in the fourth. Whitewater made two in the fourth and one in the seventh, tying the score. There were no chances to score till the tenth, when a hit by pitched ball, an error and a fix to left scored for the visitors, giving a one score lead which the home failed to even up. Stone McGlynn, ex-Brewer pitcher of Milwaukee, pitched a good game for East Troy, and Bob Fick did the same for Whitewater.

HUSBAND DEPARTS FOR SEARCH OF BIG PEARL AND LEAVES HIS WIFE

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE)

Monroe, Wis., Aug. 24.—"When I return I will bring back to you the largest fresh water pearl ever discovered."

That was the declaration of Mr. R. Townsend, who has been clamming Pecatonica river near here, as he bade his wife and four children good-bye.

Soon the engine of the motor boat started with a put-put-put and Townsend swung out into the river and was soon lost around the bend. It was four weeks ago he made this declaration and since that time the little woman and four children, ranging in age from 4 to 13 years, have been keeping a lonely vigil in the tent on the banks of the river.

They had been clamming in the river practically all of the summer and while they had gathered from eighteen to twenty tons of shells they had not been able to dispose of any of the same and soon after the disappearance of the father, the shells were attached by a merchant at Brownstown, who held a large bill for groceries. Since that time the little wife had been trying to keep the family as best she could, depending principally on a little garden patch on the banks of the river which she had cultivated.

Today residents in that vicinity discovered her destitution and a report was made to the authorities, who arranged for her care and that of the children until the husband returns with the largest fresh water pearl ever discovered or relatives at Beloit, Wis., are able to give her needed assistance.

Plot of The Metro Pictures Corporation's Impressive Production of Henry Arthur Jones' Great Drama, "The Middleman."

With Albert Chevalier in the Leading Role.

Joseph Chandler, owner of Tatlow Potteries, is in serious financial straits. He is informed by his creditors that the potteries must be closed, the closing down of the works will mean the utter ruin of the town, and the work people almost mob the potter's office in their desperation upon learning of the owner's plight.

Among Chandler's employees is Cyrus Blenkarn, who is experimenting with a new glaze. With the assistance of Jesse Fagg, he discovers a new glaze that is translucent. Realizing that his discovery revolutionize the industry, he hurries into the office. The creditors, quick to see the possibilities of the discovery, grant Chandler unlimited credit. Chandler promptly gives Blenkarn fifty pounds sterling, and a few moments later is himself receiving the acclaim of the workers as the savior of the town. Chandler has no scruples in taking all the benefits of Blenkarn's discovery and soon becomes rich.

Mr. Seaton Umfraville, with his daughter Felicia makes Chandler's acquaintance, and a union between Julian Chandler and Felice is arranged. Julian is enamored of Mary Blenkarn, and in spite of opposition, a dangerous intimacy springs up between Julian and Mary. Mary, discovering that Julian is about to leave for Africa, can conceal her guilt no longer and leaves to drown her shame in the dark waters of the Thames.

Blenkarn, whose love for Mary is Godly, learns that Chandler's son is responsible for Mary's shame and he
